

Editorial Board Members The Educational and Developmental Psychologist

Call for Expressions of Interest

The APS is seeking Expressions of Interest for Editorial Board members for The Educational and Developmental Psychologist (EDP), one of the Society's College journals.

The Educational and Developmental Psychologist is a quality, peer-reviewed journal. EDP publishes psychological research that makes a substantial contribution to the knowledge and practice of education and developmental psychology. The broad aims are to provide a vehicle for dissemination of research that is of national and international significance to the researchers, practitioners and students of educational and developmental psychology.

The term of appointment of Editor Board members of EDP is up to five years.

Expressions of Interest close at 5pm on Thursday November 30, 2017, and should be emailed to science@psychology.org.au. Applications should include an up-to-date curriculum vitae together with a written Expression of Interest. Please contact science@psychology.org.au for further information and the relevant application documentation.

Please direct any queries to Dr Sabine Hammond, Executive Manager, Science, Education and Membership, APS National Office, at the email address above or on (03) 8662 3300.